 (54) Title: METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR SEPARATING PARTICLES BY ELECTRIC FIELDS

(57) Abstract: The invention concerns a method and apparatus for separating mineral particles according to their dielectric and/or electrophysical properties. In one practical example, rutile particles can be separated from zircon particles. In the method, the mineral particles which are to be separated are passed through a sharply non-homogenous electrical field. Particles with different dielectric and/or electrophysical properties are subjected to different forces which separate them spatially. The spatially separated particles are collected in discrete fractions.

 (54) Title: EXTERNAL MAGNETIC FIELD PRODUCTION AND PROPULSION MECHANISMS

(57) Abstract: Intense External Magnetic Field (EMF) can be produce outside an atom. Rotating solenoid while producing low magentic (LMF), using electric motor rotates the LMF that can interact with charged particles, thus producing EMF. The sequences energized charged particles (electrons and proton) and increase the magnitude of produced EMF, THUS REDUCING GYRATING RADIUS, therefore emitting synchrotron radiation at certain stage. With presence of loop of conductor across the rotating MF, high electromotive force could be produced on the wire terminals with required current when under a load. When LMF of rotating solenoids emerged from diamagnetic materials such as bismuth, it interacts with provided charged particles external of the diamagnetic material and producing EMF, THUS PRODUCING FORWARD TRANSLATIONAL FORCE (EMF-Force), which constitute an External Magnetic 'Field Propulsion (EMFP), that could be utilized in propelling objects on wheels, railroads, river or sea, shaft driving or propel mechanism, it can also derived space ships disk like objects or new flying objects.

 (54) Title: AUTOMATED WATER SPRINKLER

(57) Abstract: A system is provided wherein the periods of opening and closing of valves used in an irrigation system may be pre-set so that the irrigation of crops may proceed unattended according to pre-determined durations on the basis of crop types. The components parts described make up the automatic sprinkler(s) which when used in irrigation is much more convenient than any other. It is timed through a clock by a farmer for a particular crops' water intake. There is no wastage of water or soil erosion which occurs when water is not controlled. These sprinklers can be used by both small and large scale farmers conveniently. By assembling solar panel which converts sun energy to electric energy which proceeds to recharge the battery. This keeps the battery alive the whole day to enable the inverter power the whole system that includes hour clock which switches on and off a contactor which enables current to flow from the inverter to pump to initiate pumping. Sprinkling takes off when the pump is initiated. It accesses water from the source to the sprinklers which its rotation is a result of pressure of this water which sprinkles when the sprinkler rotates.
