(54) Title: A CONSTRUCT CAPABLE OF RELEASE IN CLOSED CIRCULAR FORM FROM A LARGER NUCLEOTIDE SEQUENCE PERMITTING SITE SPECIFIC EXPRESSION AND/OR DEVELOPMENTALLY REGULATED EXPRESSION OF SELECTED GENETIC SEQUENCES

(51) Int.Cl.8: C 12N 15/09, 15/79, 15/82

(57) Abstract: The present invention relates generally to constructs and in particular genetic constructs comprising polynucleotide sequences capable of release in covalently closed, circular form from a larger nucleotide sequence such as, but not limited to, a genome of a eukaryotic cell. Preferably, once released, a polynucleotide sequence is reconstituted in a form which permits expression of the polynucleotide sequence. In one embodiment, the reconstituted polynucleotide sequence comprises a coding sequence with all or part of an extraneous nucleotide such as, but not limited to, intronic sequence or other splice signal inserted therein. Expression and in particular transcription of the coding sequence involves splicing out the extraneous sequence. The release and circularization is generally in response to a stimulus such as a protein-mediated stimulus. More particularly, the protein is a viral or prokaryotic or eukaryotic derived protein or developmentally and/or tissue specific regulated protein. The construct of the present invention is particularly useful in conferring genetic resistance against pathogens or inducing apoptosis or other cell death mechanisms useful, for example, in treating cancer or inducing male or female sterility in plants. The constructs permit, therefore, site specific expression and/or developmentally regulated expression of selected genetic sequences.

(54) Title: PROCESSING ELEMENTAL SULFUR-BEARING MATERIALS USING HIGH TEMPERATURE PRESSURE LEACHING FOR SULFURIC ACID PRODUCTION AND METAL RECOVERY

(51) Int.Cl.8: C 22B 15/00, 3/08

(57) Abstract: The present invention relates generally to a process for the production of sulfuric acid and liberation of metal values such as copper and precious metals from materials containing sulfur through pressure leaching operations. In accordance with various aspects of the present invention, the sulfur-bearing materials may comprise residues from pressure leaching operations, such as those carried out at medium temperatures. The process of the present invention can be advantageously used to convert such sulfur-bearing materials to sulfuric acid by means of pressure leaching. The sulfuric acid so produced can be used beneficially in other mineral processing operations, for example those at the site where it is produced. Metals, such as precious metals, that are contained within the sulfur-bearing materials advantageously may be recovered from processing products by established precious metals recovery technology

(54) Title: ADJUSTABLE ANTI-SPLITTING DEVICE

(51) Int.Cl.8: B 25D 1/04, E 01B 3/06

(57) Abstract: The anti-splitting device (10) of the present invention has a central web portion (14) and a pair of end web portions (16, 18), which are joined adjacent to their midpoints to opposite ends of the central web portion (14) to provide the device with generally I-shaped cross-sectional configurations. The web portions have first side edges (14b, 16b, 18b) tapered to define a cutting edge and second side edges (14b, 16b, 18b) serving to define a planar driven surface (26) disposed parallel to the cutting edge. And on the central web portion (14) are at least two projections (20, 22) to upstand from driven surface. The projections (20, 22) are adapted to removably attach the device (10) to a driver employed to insert the device into a log. The driver (12) of the present invention is preferably in the form of a manually operational hammer having a planar driver surface (38) of circular plan from configuration and a circular groove (40) that has an outer diameter equidistant and an inner diameter equidistant from a given fixed point, the center of the planar driving surface (38). The groove (40) receives the projections (20, 22) and contacts a predetermined portion of the projections; the projections exert a force on either the outer diameter or the inner diameter, and do not contact both diameters at the same time. The device can then be freely rotated in the groove to obtain a desired position on the driver surface. Thus, the device can be driven into the end of a log upon swinging of the driver, and the projections will not remain in the groove, if they happen to break off.

(57) Abstract: The security door alarm system is made of wood but the same design can also be made of aluminium and metal. The door is wired by 1.0mm 3-core flexible cable and this leads to a magnetic conductor, which is energized to give contact to the siren using ac current 240v and the floodlights. A 12 volts dc battery operates the 12 volts rotary siren. Both wiring systems work simultaneously such that if there is no electricity the door's alarm system is still activatable. The glass crush switch operates the alarm out of the site and anybody crushing the door to gain access wouldn't know how the alarm went on suddenly if one is under pressure to open up for criminals from outside and the door is fitted with a panic button he or she can secretly use the gadgets without people around noticing.
