INID CODES

INID is an acronym for ‘Internationally agreed Numbers for the Identification of (bibliographic) Data’. The codes are used on the first page of industrial property documents and in gazettes to identify the bibliographic data without knowledge of the language used and the industrial property laws applied. The following INID codes are used in this Journal:

Standard ST.9 and ST.80 for Patents and utility Models and Industrial Designs

- (11) Number of the document

 METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR STRENGTHENING GLASS.
 (51) Int.Cl.C: 0 3C 21/00
 (57): The invention relates to a method and apparatus for strengthening glass. A method according to one aspect of the invention strengthens glass by applying potassium ions to the surface of a glass article with the surface being at least the annealing point temperature of the glass and then keeping the temperature of the glass between the strain point temperature of the glass and about 150 degrees centigrade below the strain point temperature for at least about five minutes to facilitate a more efficient ion-exchange reaction. In one embodiment, the glass articles may be sprayed with molten potassium salt to apply the ions. As a result of the methods of the invention, the treated glass articles may be strengthened by having an increased surface stress or may contain less glass with no change in strength as compared to the same untreated glass article.

(72) Inventors: MARGA DUMMEN

(73) Applicant(s): MARGA DUMMEN , Dammweg 20, Rheinberg D-47495, Germany

(74) Agent: Ndungu Njoroge & Kwach Advocates,

(57) This invention relates to a culture tray 1, in particular for the rooting of young plants, with channels 2 that run in parallel and at predefinable distances and serve to accommodate young plants. To enable removal of individual young plants preferably without harming them and to enable relatively economical consumption of water for the young plants it is proposed in accordance with the present invention that the space for each young plant be limited by the sidewalls 3. 4 of the channel 2 and across the longitudinal direction of the channel 2 by partition webs 21, 31. This will, in particular, ensure that the water is directly supplied to each plant space and, moreover, that the plants can be pushed sideways out of the culture tray by pushing out of the culture tray the web and ledge skeletons 20, 30. and the plants are easy to take out, because there are then no sidewalls. The embodiment of the culture tray 1 invention warrants uniform moistening of all existing plant spaces and ensures that even those plants receive enough water that are, for example, partly covered by large leaves of adjacent plants. since the water draining down the elevations 5 flows into each individual plant space.P.O. (57) Intense External Magnetic Field (EMF) can be produce outside an atom. Rotating solenoid while producing low magnetic (LMF), using electric motor rotates the LMF that can interact with charged particles, thus producing EMF. The sequences energized charged particles (electrons and proton) and increase the magnitude of produced EMF, THUS REDUCING GYRATING RADIUS, therefore emitting synchrotron radiation at certain stage. With presence of loop of conductor across the rotating MF, high electromotive force could be produced on the wire terminals with required current when under a load. When LMF of rotating solenoids emerged from diamagnetic materials such as bismuth, it interacts with provided charged particles external of the diamagnetic material and producing EMF, THUS PRODUCING FORWARD TRANSLATIONAL FORCE (EMF-Force), which constitute an External Magnetic 'Field Propulsion (EMFP), that could be utilized in propelling objects on wheels, railroads, river or sea, shaft driving or propel mechanism, it can also derived space ships disk like objects or new flying objects.

(57) Malaria, a problem to humanity because of the magnitude of mobility and mortality is presented as a priority problem for science to provide new answers to the ever-increasing drug resistance. The drug need for malaria treatment is summarised as specific and general. Therapeutic qualities of tinidazole overlapping with those of specific anti-malarial drugs are revealed in particular to chloroquine. The structural activity relationships (SARs) of both at the DNA level are revealed. Tinidazole is administered at a dose of 28.6-50mg/kg body weight. Eleven examples are highlighted to show how tinidazole and steroids effect cure in sensitive and drug resistant malaria. One ACT resistant case which readily responded to tinidazole and steroids is also presented.

A 12 volts dc battery operates the 12 volts rotary siren. Both wiring systems work simultaneously such that if there is no electricity the doors alarm system is still activatable. The glass crush switches operates the alarm out of the site and anybody crushing the door to gain access wouldn't know how the alarm went on suddenly if one is under pressure to open up for criminals from outside and the door is fitted with a panic button he or she can secretly use the gadgets without people around noticing.

(57) This is innovation in the area of Entomophagy. The invention pertains to production of baked crackers and muffins; sausages and meat loafs from reproductive termites (isoptera) and mayflies (ephemeroptea) as key ingredients in the food production. The key ingredients are made by sun-drying termites and mayflies, which are then grinded into flour for use. In baking, the ingredients are mixed with wheat flour, other baking ingredients and raising agents to form dough and batter, which are then baked accordingly in conventional oven to make crackers and muffins. The sausages are made from the mayfly ingredient, food fillers, food additives and boiled or fried as necessary. The mayfly ingredient is then mixed with food fillers, food additives, eggs, gelatin and shortening placed into a loaf mold, then cooked under pressure to make the meat loaf. Food additives used include sodium chloride, sodium nitrite, sodium tri-phosphate (STPP), dextrose, and monosodium glutamate (MSG).

(57) The use of piperine as pyrethrins synergist against insect and other arthropods pests and vectors of disease causing organisms in human and animals have been shown by the experiment of incorporating piperine to un pyrethrins in the ratio 5:1 and bioassayed against houseflies. The results obtained clearly showed that piperine is a potent synergist to pyrethrins and perhaps any other insecticide, since all insecticides employ similar mode of action. Piperine was amply extracted from the seeds of Piper nigrum using ethanol and isolated piperine structure was elucidated by (Proton and Carbon) NMR, GC/MS and IR spectra. The spectra agree with that of piperine by comparison. Therefore it is fundamentally clear that piperine will go a long way in lowering the cost of production of pyrethrum-based insecticides resulting in a cheaper and environmentally friendly insect, arthropods pest and vector management in the field or at household level.

The banking sector today will not allow any deposits or savings e.g Ksh. 40 or Ksh. 50 in any single because they see that as not cost effective.

This will through these transactions and deposits indicate an increase of over Ksh.10 BILLION in single deposits per network user per day/month. This will thus give Central Bank of Kenya direction in implementing a pool interest platform across the board.

(57) Traditional green vegetables play an important role in household nutrition throughout Kenya; these are the main source of vitamins and provide variety to meals otherwise consisting of maize, beans and occasionally, meat stews. These green vegetables also provide a secondary source of proteins. In general, green leaves and young stems are collected, washed, chopped and cooked in combination with spices and other vegetables such as onions and tomatoes. These green vegetables have occupied an important role in rural areas and for urban consumption. These vegetables are likely to become more important within urban gardens as well.

Increase in prevalence of chronic diseases and micronutrient deficiency in developing countries despite the availability of African Indigenous Vegetables (AIVs) that are rich in micronutrients, is burdening equitable distribution of national and household resources. Changes in dietary patterns, attitudes and beliefs about food have resulted in higher prevalence of chronic diseases and micronutrient deficiencies. This is because indigenous foods especially plant foods are being replaced by high-fat, energy-dense diets with increased intake of animal foods and yet plant based foods especially African Indigenous vegetables are rich in essential micronutrients needed for healthy living, however, they are seasonal. Therefore recipes on vegetable product development promises availability of these vegetables throughout the year and may also reduce. Diversification of diets through increased utilization and consumption of these vegetable products would go along way in alleviating hidden hunger and malnutrition.

2.0 Industrial Designs

2.1 Designs accepted for registration

NOTICE is given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the Registration of any of the Industrial designs advertised herein may within sixty (60) days from the date of this Journal, lodge a notice of opposition on form IP 36 (in duplicate) together with a fee of Ksh.5, 000/= (local opponent) or US$ 250 (foreign opponent).

The period of lodging the notice of opposition may be extended by the Managing Director as he deems fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the Managing Director to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after a reasonable notice has been given in writing to the applicant to afford him any opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

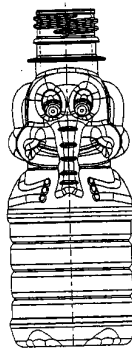

Representations and samples of the designs advertised herein can be seen at the Patent Registry, Kenya Industrial Property Institute, Weights and Measures premises, Popo Road, off Mombasa Road, Nairobi.
