 (54): PLANT PROTECTIVE COVER. (51) Int.Cl.8: A 01G 9/14 (57): This invention relates to a plant protective cover of a translucent polymeric material including at least one transmission spectrum modifier for minimising the transmission in the ultraviolet range up to 350 nm; and for adjusting the transmission in the visible light range between 350 nm and 750 nm in accordance with photosynthetic and photomorphogenic requirements of plants to be cultivated underneath the plant protective cover, to enhance the growth conditions of such plants. The cover further includes a transmission spectrum modifier for minimising the transmission in the infrared range above 750 nm. The transmission in the visible light range between 350 nm and 750nm is adjusted by decreasing the transmitted green and yellow wavelengths and by changing the ratio of blue to red wavelengths transmitted towards a 2:3 ratio. The cover optimises growing conditions for plants cultivated underneath the cover thus providing relatively enhanced plant growth and performance,

(57) The use of piperine as pyrethrins synergist against insect and other arthropods pests and vectors of disease causing organisms in human and animals have been shown by the experiment of incorporating piperine to un pyrethrins in the ratio 5:1 and bioassayed against houseflies. The results obtained clearly showed that piperine is a potent synergist to pyrethrins and perhaps any other insecticide, since all insecticides employ similar mode of action. Piperine was amply extracted from the seeds of Piper nigrum using ethanol and isolated piperine structure was elucidated by (Proton and Carbon) NMR, GC/MS and IR spectra. The spectra agree with that of piperine by comparison. Therefore it is fundamentally clear that piperine will go a long way in lowering the cost of production of pyrethrum-based insecticides resulting in a cheaper and environmentally friendly insect, arthropods pest and vector management in the field or at household level.

(21): 2008/ 000758 (22): 05/06/2008 (30) Priority: (51) Int.Cl. (54): A SYSTEM AND METHOD FOR CONTROLLING A REMOTE DEVICE. (71): NYS ENGINEERING INSTITUTE and KHAKAME PETER WAMBOKO , P.O. (57) A system and method for communicating with a remote location, such as a vehicle or building, the system including a calling transceiver, Cellular network/Public Switched Telephone Network, and a receiving transceiver. In the system and method, the calling transceiver and the receiving transceiver are communicate over- the-air, through the cellular network order to control a device located in the remote location. Upon receiving the signal, the remote transceiver generates a first signal, which is received by a tripping circuit, which in turn generates a second signal. The second signal causes a switch to trip, which thereby controls the device located at the remote location. The remote transceiver also has the capacity to transmit reverse wireless communications through the Cellular\PSTN, which allows monitoring of the device.

(21): 2008/ 000791 (22): 05/09/2008 (30) Priority: (51) Int.Cl. (54): E-IPO (71): CITI BANK , P. O. BOX 30711-00100, NAIROBI, Kenya (72): (74): NJOROGE REGERU & COMPANY ADVOCATES, (57) The invention is called E-IPO. It is an innovative internet-based system developed to automate and manage end-to-end the Initial Public Offer process, and is the first of its kind in East Africa. Registration is claimed by Citibank N.A through its Kenya branch.

The system allows investors, stock brokers and partner banks to apply and manage the allocation of shares during the Initial Public Offers by public companies. Share application forms are displayed on the screen and an investor then fills the same online and the same is forwarded to the relevant Stock Broker/Bank. Once the form is filled and send online, an automatic temporary CDS account is created for the Investor and their details retained. Every time the Investor logs on to the system, they will be availed with information on the shares allocated to them and the status of refunds, if any, due to them. The system is paperless and it ensures that application forms are not misplaced, duplicated or omitted during the hand offs. The E-IPO system is meant to replace the manual IPO process.

(51) International Class (Loc (6)): 20-03 (54): ADVERTISING STRUCTURE

The advertising structure is to be known as Advertising Light (Ad lit) and is a uniquely triangular shaped structure used on the ceiling roof inside a building.

This advertising structure which is a hollow triangular shape is to be mounted on a roof ceiling inside a building structure (indoor advertising). The indoor roof ceiling mounting can be in two forms.

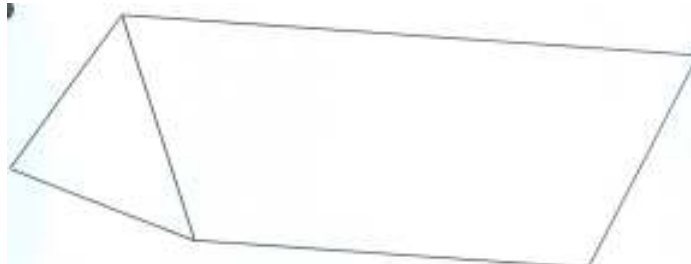

1. It can be mounted directly on the ceiling roof either by being screwed directly on to the ceiling.
2. Or by slightly being suspended on the roof ceiling by a suspension medium e.g. chain or strong string.

This adverting structure (Ad Lit) can be used with a light panel (this being the source of light to be able to illuminate the advert(s) inside the Ad lit in an area which is dimly lit or has no light at all).

Or

It can be used without the light panel in an area which is well lit either by electrical power light or natural light.

The design area of the sign allows for creative messaging making it possible for single or multiple brands to be displayed on the four panels of the Ad lit.
