(51) Int.Cl.8: G 05B 15/02, G 06F 17/40, 19/00

(57): A self-healing power grid control system includes a power grid having a plurality of network islands with a plurality of linear and non-linear loads. A plurality of control sensors communicate with the power grid to monitor the electrical characteristics of the power grid. A plurality of controlled relays are in electrical communication with the plurality of non-linear loads. A battery energy storage system (ESS) is in electrical communication with the main power source and a network island. A first restoration controller is in electrical communication with the control sensors, the controlled relays, and with the battery ESS. The first restoration controller receives control signals from the control sensors, and in response to detecting an irregularity in the power grid, automatically actuates the battery ESS to stabilize power to the linear loads, and disconnects selected controlled relays to disconnect power to a calculated percentage of the non-linear loads.

(51) Int.Cl.8: H 02J 7/00

(57): A telecommunication system incorporates a vanadium redox battery energy storage system. The vanadium redox battery energy storage system receives and is charged by DC power. Upon power interruption, telecommunication equipment relies on the vanadium redox battery energy storage system to receive DC power. A charger/rectifier monitors received AC power to determine if an AC power interruption is occurring and initiates DC power transmission from the vanadium redox battery energy storage system to the telecommunication equipment.

 KHAKAME PETER WAMBOKO (74):,

(57) A system and method for communicating with a remote location, such as a vehicle or building, the system including a calling transceiver, Cellular network/Public Switched Telephone Network, and a receiving transceiver. In the system and method, the calling transceiver and the receiving transceiver are communicate over-the-air, through the cellular network order to control a device located in the remote location. Upon receiving the signal, the remote transceiver generates a first signal, which is received by a tripping circuit, which in turn generates a second signal. The second signal causes a switch to trip, which thereby controls the device located at the remote location. The remote transceiver also has the capacity to transmit reverse wireless communications through the Cellular/PSTN, which allows monitoring of the device.
