 (57): The invention provides a method and a network node for controlling configuration of measurements to be performed by a user equipment (150a, 150b) operating in a wireless communication system (101). A configured measurement corresponds to at least one reporting criteria and the user equipment (150a, 150b) is able to support a limited number of parallel reporting criteria. Measurements to be performed by the user equipment in parallel may be requested by different network nodes such as a positioning server (140) and an eNodeB (110a, 110b). By letting a network node, such as the positioning server (140) or the (eNodeB 110a, 110b), obtain information on measurements requested by another network node the network node is able to configure the user equipment with a set of measurements that does not exceed at least one predetermined threshold for parallel reporting criteria

The user uses earphones for notification. The device has software and uses GPS to guide the user. The user then listens to the notifications through earphones. Standard transistors to transmit and receive the ultrasound and a comparator to set the threshold echo detection level. The time from transmission of the pulse to reception of the echo is the time taken for the sound energy to travel through the air to the object and back again. The software part of the device is a mobile application which uses GPS to guide the user turn-by-turn to the destination. The power supply consists of a 8.4V rechargeable battery supplying 250mAh current to power the ultrasound and the GSM networks.

However, due to the negative effects of plastic on the environment (soil, water, wildlife and plants) and humans Kenya joined other countries in the ban of plastic bag usage. Although, there are garbage bags and dustbin liners that are biodegradable. These bags are expensive and therefore not affordable. Consequently, Green Revolution Nature Protect Company Limited came up with the garbage bags and dustbin liners made from nylon laminated with polyurethane that is affordable, biodegradable and reusable. The product can be washed, has a drawstring at the opening ensuring a tight grip on trash cans. Furthermore, the product is made by tailoring the waterproof side inside the bag making it leak-proof.
