(54) Title: AUTOMATED SMART SELF REGULATING BROODER WITH GSM CAPABILITY

(51) Int.Cl.2016.01: G 05D 21/00, F 24F 7/00

(57) Abstract: The automated smart self-regulating brooder seeks to improve the health and development of poultry of all ages and mostly chicks by ensuring the environment within the coop or brooder is constantly monitored and regulated within the thermo comfort zone of poultry based on their requirements at a specific age. These sensors (Temperature and Humidity) are evenly distributed around the brooder to increase accuracy. A few sensors either 3 or 5 (placed at chick height) take readings throughout the brooding space and relay the data to a small onboard analog computer (microcontroller) which is programmed to determine the age of the flock and regulates the environmental conditions within the brooding space or coop based on the requirements of the flock at their particular age. This can be done by turning on/off a heat source, cooling source e.g. fans, sprayers or raising and lowering a curtain with the help of a motor. GSM is used to convey data to the farmer and one can expect a sms if something goes wrong. The brooding structure is spherical to reduce sharp corners where chicks may potentially huddle and easily suffocate each other. Insulation is also incorporated to reduce heat loss and thus save on energy. It is to be noted that the device is not constrained to control the environment of chicks only but to control the environment throughout the life of poultry or any other space where the environment is to be controlled.
