(57) The invention relates to a portable liquid dispenser for dispensing preselected quantities of liquid on demand from a liquid receptacle comprising a housing containing a pump driven response to motor activation signals received from a microcontroller, a microcontroller, a battery and a flow control handle at which the desired quantity of liquid to be delivered can be dispersed through. The pump is connected by way of flexible liquid dispensing tubes connected to the respective liquid inlet and liquid outlet ports of the pump. A filter is connected to the liquid inlet tube while the liquid outlet tube is connected to a flow control handle containing a flow sensor, solenoid valve and spout nozzle. The flow sensor pulses when liquid flows through it, for the microcontroller to process into volumes of liquid. The microcontroller calculates the cumulative volume of liquid dispensed and produces a signal for closing of the solenoid valve when the preselected quantity has been dispensed P.O.BOX 20140-00100 NAIROBI

(57): At present, many herbicidal compositions have been developed and used, but there are a variety of types of weeds to be controlled, and their development lasts for a long period of time. Thus, a high active and long-residual herbicidal composition having a broad herbicidal spectrum has been desired. The present invention provides a synergetic herbicidal composition comprising (A) flazasulfuron or its salt and (B) at least one urea compound selected from the group consisting of tebuthiuron, diuron and metobromuron or its salt. According to the synergistic herbicidal composition of the present invention, a high active and long-residual herbicidal composition having a broad-spectrum can be provided.

(54) Title: DOG WATCH -ROBOT TO KEEP OFF MONKEYS AND LIKES ANIMALS FROM POWER STATIONS

(51) Int.Cl.2016.01: G 08B 13/00

(57) Abstract:

Geographically, the topography within the hydro power stations makes the area habitable for numerous animals due to the vast forests that engulf the stations. Currently the measures used to scare away the monkeys, is the engagement of Kenya Wildlife Service Personnel who once in a while scare away the monkeys with rubber bullets. After a while they are back again and the population has continued to increase over time. Monkeys are quite destructive causing loss of revenue -to industries and farmers thus resorting to keeping of dogs to scare them away so as to protect their equipment (eg transformers) and crops. The sound of dogs barking is enough to scare away the monkeys. Dogs also have their limitations and emands and so recommendation is for a robot called a Dog-Watch. This is a fabricated mechanical dog with sensors that cover a radius of 25meters apart at 180degrees. The sensors are infrared and motion detectors and anything moving and coming within that radius, is picked up and signals are sent to the relays that set off the other systems. The dog can move its jaws up and down, and can stand from a sitting position and bark with the help of an installed audio player inside it. The audios which are recorded are of a dog barking and a monkey in distress which is very scary for monkeys and will make them take off. A signal is also sent to the control room to alert the personnel of the intruder.

(57) Abstract: In a bubble lift system 10, a pressurized chamber 21 is provided at an upper end portion of a riser pipe 11, and applies a pressure to an upper portion inside the riser pipe 11 to suppress an increase in the volume ratio of bubbles to a fluid mixture rising inside the riser pipe 11 in a shallow water region. In this configuration, the upper end of the riser pipe 11 is not opened to the atmosphere but is inserted into the pressurized chamber 21 under a high pressure to thereby prevent expansion of the bubbles and gas. In addition, a deaerator 14 for discharging bubbles separated by a centrifugal force is also provided in a middle portion of the riser pipe 11 in a shallow water region to thereby make the bubbles distributed more evenly inside the whole riser pipe 11. Thus, provided are the bubble lift system 10 and a bubble lift method that are efficient and employable even in a deep water region.

(54) Title: Front fender structure in automatic two-wheeled vehicle

(51) Int.Cl.: B 62J 15/00

(57) Abstract: In an automatic two-wheeled vehicle in which a front fender is formed from an up fender that is capable of moving closer to and away from a front wheel and a down fender that is disposed beneath the up fender so as to cover from above the front wheel to the rear of a front fork and that is at a constant relative position in the vertical direction with respect to the front wheel, the up fender (46) is formed so as to extend from the front to the rear of the front fork (11) so that a rear part of the up fender (46) overlaps a front part of the down fender (47) in plan view, and a rear end lower edge (46b) of the up fender (46) when the vehicle is being ridden is positioned beneath a front end upper edge (47c) of the down fender (47). Thus, it is possible to suppress scattering of mud or water toward the rider side by the mutual functioning of the up fender and the down fender.

(51) Int.Cl.: H 02K 47/00, H 02K 7/003, B 60K 6/20

(57) Abstract: Disclosed in the present invention is a shaft construction for motor-generators utilized in conventional combustion engines, electric and hybrid vehicles and alternators that provides effective airflow and improved overall cooling without the need for an external fan. The shaft comprises a plurality of circumferentially disposed centrifugal fan blades and longitudinal cooling channels. As the shaft rotates, the centrifugal fan blades pull the air inwardly across the winding end-turns on one end of the stator into the housing and propels the air at high pressure through the cooling channels along the shaft to cool the rotor inner circumferential surfaces, winding end-turns on the other end of the stator and bearings mounting surfaces, and exhausts through the exhaust vents on the ends of the housing. The airflow path provides effective cooling of the stator windings, rotor, shaft and bearings that prevents high temperature gradients, thus resulting in improved motor-generator performance.

 (51) A 63B 23/00

This invention discloses an adaptable flexing exercise bike comprising a bicycle frame having a seat tube, seat stays, and a top tube, where the top tube is integral with the seat and stays to form a crossbar tube.

The exercise bike has a coupling device that flexibly and directly couples the top tube to the seat tube such that the top tube can be displaced at least in a vertical direction with respect to the seat tube. The invention also disclose a link assembly including at least one link operatively associated with the elongated, adjustment member, the first bracket, and the second bracket, wherein the elongated adjustment member, the magnetic brake and the link assembly are configured such that rotation of the elongated adjustment member around the longitudinal axis of the elongated adjustment member causes the first bracket and the second bracket to pivot in the same direction and is capable of moving the first and second bracket in any direction.
